5:10 6. Program Presentations

6.1 WIC

BOD member Nicolette Lee visited WIC on 8/11 during the 11th annual Breastfeeding Walk, and noted that the walk occurred in conjunction with the Farmers Market, which was helpful in drawing in participants that otherwise might not have known about the event. It was clear that this smaller community is part of the bigger, and that it is a cornerstone in the community. CEO noted that the farmers marked has a direct link to WIC as all Santa Cruz County Farmers Markets, except for Aptos, accept WIC coupons for fresh food and vegetables. WIC Program Director Cathy Cavanaugh noted that August is the world breast feeding month, and shared images from the walk. Cathy pointed to an article in the 3/29 issue of Budget and Policy Priorities, that points to a range of positive health outcomes for WIC participants. Cathy referred to the WIC list of foods can be bought with vouchers, and clarified that participants are limited to breastfeeding mothers and children under 5 years of age. The financial impact in Santa Cruz County is $400K per month spent in grocery stores, with the highest redemption rate and most dollars spent in Watsonville. Cathy gave an overview of the county’s demographics of WIC participants, divided into San Lorenzo Valley, Santa Cruz, and Watsonville. Cathy further noted that while many view WIC as an emergency program, it is being framed as an educational program. WIC is using technology as much as possible. WIC participation is falling all over the Country, and local reasons include families moving away due to cost of living, fewer teen pregnancies, lower birth rate, and families not able to visit WIC sites during working hours. Steve McKay noted that families may not be able to access services as federal poverty levels are not updated to reflect local incomes and cost of living.

7.1 Retreat

CEO noted that September 22, noon-6 pm is established as the time for the retreat. We will meet for lunch at Jalisco’s at noon, and follow with the retreat 1 pm-6 pm at the WIC Big Bird room at the new CB building. The committee is currently finalizing facilitators and guest speakers.

7.2 Development Director – Virginia Wright

CEO passed around DDs resume, and noted Wright’s work experience.

7.2 Budgets
CEO shared a flow chart showing the impacts of budget shortfalls, and long- and short-term mitigation strategies for MCR, ELD, and MOW. Although $85K from the county and $20K from the city was regained for MOW, the $85K was unexpectedly allotted for only one year. CEO noted the need to be conservative in case the $85K is not allotted the next two years. MOW is seeing an increase in cost, and is currently on a one-year extended lease. This year MOW is using $90K of carry forward funds.

7.2.1 MOW- Clay Kempf

Clay Kempf distributed a 2017 Senior Fact Sheet for Santa Cruz County and chart depicting trends in funding for local senior programs, and noted that funding for senior programs is declining while the population is growing at unprecedented levels. Clay expressed deep concern about this trend and a lack of care and awareness from elected officials, and noted the importance of being active voices in promoting and protecting senior’s rights. Clay noted past and ongoing advocacy efforts, and that having ongoing conversations with elected officials and taking some heat is part of the process. It is also important to celebrate successes. Clay invited BOD members to attend the Solution Summit on 10/18, and noted that an Advocacy Committee that now meets every 2nd Monday of every month resulted from last year’s summit. Clay will send a formal invitation to BOD to attend the Summit and to join the Advocacy Committee. MOW is the largest program funded by the Seniors Council at $.75m.

7.2.2 MCR

MCR is using prior year funds, as well as layoffs of part-time staff and reduction in all staff’s hours, to cover the $41.2K deficit.

7.2.3 ELD

ELD is freezing all staff salaries to mitigate a $19.7K deficit. A 3-year rent reduction was successfully negotiated with the Ow’s.

7.2.4 FRC-Kiaiser

6:17 8. Capital Campaign- Nancy Sherrod (40 min)

CEO noted the discussion from last meeting and that he will be mindful about the timely sharing of future communication plans. Nancy Sherrod shared her experiences from working with the 2008 CASA $1.5 M capital campaign, and the initial nervousness of the CASA board. Nancy noted that a Capital Campaign will rejuvenated people and facilitate a renewed vision, as we need to tell why we are doing what we are doing, and why giving will make a difference. The CASA campaign resulted in renewed donors. Evolvement happens due to having a location. The CASA campaign resulted in a book library, computer room, and a location that children wanted to visit! Capital Campaign makes you brave. If you believe in the “why”, the fundraising becomes easy. The prospect committee’s purpose is to look at individuals in our community for potential donors. A capital campaign forces a stronger overall message that can be used in the future. Nancy deemed that Community Bridges is poised to do this well, and to succeed in a rewarding effort. Nancy shared summary of the CASA campaign and explored pros and cons. She further discussed the importance of hiring a consultant whose first steps include presenting capital campaign materials to community leaders and subsequently compiling a report for BOD. The consultant will estimate how much can be raised, and will ask for community leaders’ advise and feedback on messaging. The consultant can both do the initial work to produce the report and conduct the campaign, but these are not always done by the same individual. A steering committee should consist of a few BOD members and community members. CASA trained its BOD members, and practiced asking for donations by going to other BOD member’s homes with capital campaign packets and a pitch. CASA produced campaign materials in house, but this part is important, and external help may be warranted. The CASA BOD of 15 members combined pledged $200K, and met 3-4 times within their subcommittees. Nancy clarified that the quiet faze is when 50% of gifts are secured before going public with the campaign. CASA increased staff by 20 hours a week during the campaign. The donor walls at the CASA house consists of tiles that donors drew on, and created a long-lasting visual representation of the giving, co-created with donors. BOD does need to embrace the campaign fully in order for it to be successful. CEO gave an overview of the projected timeline, and pointed to four major themes: steward the environment, bridge the digital divide, beautify the campus, and secure financial stability. Nancy noted that the steering committee will make the final approval of marketing materials. Nancy asked what BOD and staff is excited, concerned, or have questions about. Board member noted that this is an opportunity for evolvement, and a permanent home, and that it can help tie together the fundraising message by solidifying programs together. Board members shared excitement at the prospect of financial stability and investment in Watsonville. CEO noted that this is also a worry as not all donors want to invest in Watsonville. Staff expressed worry about the staff effort needed in addition to regularly performed tasks.

Next steps:
1. Reestablishing the philanthropy committee and identifying BOD members to be involved in the Capital campaign effort.
2. Hire a consultant

CEO noted that we need to be prepared to find buildings for LL and MOW Kitchen, and asked whether a campaign for all three projects would be wise. Nancy suggested a study task force be formed to explore such options.

9.1 Philanthropy Report

We have already raised almost $50K more than we had at this point last year. This amounts to 23% of annual goals raised already and includes Farm to Fork and other donations.

9.1.1 Farm to Fork Report
We raised 30% more than last year due to new sponsors and lower cost as we were not renting tablecloths, glasses, silverware etc. This will result in more funds back to programs this year than last.

9.2 BOD Members Attending Events

CEO shared a visual representation depicting how BOD members can best represent CB at events. These include; welcome and thank guests for coming; plan and practice an elevator pitch about why people should support CB; ask for feedback from guests on food, program, venue etc.(report back); listen for successes and concerns (report back); Have fun!

9.2.1 Elevator Speech

7:14 10. Finance Committee Update – Cathy Benson

CFO shared an infographic showing that by programs setting aside a minimum of 1% per year, the agency will have a minimum reserve of 25% by 2040. Ninety-one percent of programs have met the 1% reverse increase, and 36.4% of programs have already met the 25% reserve goal. By the close of the 16/17 FY, the total agency reserve had increased by 5.86%.

12:00 Meeting to order. Quorum Established.
12:01 Agenda Review
12:02 CEO Report – Ray Cancino
   1. Introduction of Development Director – Virginia Wright
   2. New Grants
      a. Kaiser
         CEO noted that this $15K grant will offset some of the recent budget cuts.
      b. Listen for Good for FRCs
         This is a $45K Packard foundation sponsored grant specifically targeted to update and streamline the client feedback surveys, using the FRCs surveys as a pilot project for the full agency.
   3. Facilities
      a. Vista Verde
         There was a break-in to this facility last weekend, but not much was stolen.
      b. LMCR
         The renovation project is going well. Two restrooms are completed as well as most of the windows. The majority of the roofing and the rest of windows will be projected for the next few weeks.
   4. City council member request for support
      Martine Watkins has requested Community Bridges’ support in an attempt of using cannabis revenue for the creation of a Children’s Fund. The proposal will be presented for BOS on 9/12. CB considerations include whether this is in line with our mission and values. City Manager prefer this does not happen in an attempt to preserve funds internally, but has not expressed having an issue with cannabis tax being the funding source. Watkins asked for letter of support and presence at the BOS meeting. CEO noted that this request exemplifies the advocacy model of prospecting. Committee member noted that marijuana is still illegal federally and has adverse health effects for children. Doug/Shannon moved to approve the staff recommendation of writing a letter of support for the Children’s Fund, and to revisit the item in the event that the fund is created to assess the Fund’s alignment with CB mission and values. MSP.

5. BOD Elections – Discussion
   Jorge will step down from his role as treasurer, and Doug is nominated to replace him. Jack is nominated to replace Doug as secretary. The BOD will cast their votes at the Board retreat. Election of the new BOD chair will take place at the November BOD meeting.

6. CB Employee Survey
   CEO presented a summary of the findings and noted that participation was much lower than last year. CEO noted that the survey was distributed after budget cuts prompted reductions in staff, which may account for some of the findings. Improving communication between MT and line staff is a priority, and will be a discussion at CQI.

7. Advocacy Update
   a. AB 300
      CEO noted that this local Assembly Bill is currently moving through the State Senate and will allow communities to receive block funding for childcare subsidization and decide locally how to allocate the funding.
   b. AB 1250 is held in suspense file for one year and can only move forward after one year and if sponsored by a different Assembly member. The bill would limit counties ability to contact with providers above $100K, and would have affected contracts between SC County and CB.

11:12 Agenda review

11:12 CFO Report – Cathy Benson

The annual projection is ready.

   a) Program Budget Summary Review – August
      - Highlights: Projected Programs’ Loss 17/18 at <$19.5K>, an improvement over our original 17/18 budget.
      - LL-Revised Measure D 1st Qtr <$50K>
        LL will likely see another positive fluctuation next month. It is unclear exactly what revenue we can expect from Measure D as we received $50 K less than expected for the first quarter then just received $92K more. There will be fluctuations, and it will be difficult to predict actual revenue until we see the annual trend.
      - MOW-Staff LOA’s lowered personnel <$6.9K>
        Two out of three cooks are currently out on a leave of absence.
      - CDD-Increased enrollment projections
        CDD saw a gain due to inclusions of projected new enrollees at Nuevo Dia and Highlands but the number of children actually attending can be expected to go down by the end of the month. CDD is transitioning to digital attendance tracking yet is experiencing a slow start getting every site database proficient.
      - FRC’s & Adm-New Rockefeller Fdn Grant +$30K
Listen for Good is a grant where we are sponsored by the Packard Foundation to streamline our client feedback surveys. Combined with another grant this has enabled us to restore hours at LOCR for all employees to 40 hours/week.

- ELD - New hires are not waiving health insurance and ADA was lower in August. ELD has had 2 resignations, but has replaced them both.

b) Financial Statement Review – August, Rev & Exps only Advances are in from some funding sources, but we will not receive revenue from our local jurisdictions until 17/18 contacts are signed. The SC County will have advanced us for three months as of September and will advance for three more in a few weeks. ELD’s revenue is different as it is dependent on ADA, and only counts if a participant spends a minimum of four hours on site. Overall earned revenue exceeds expenses. Mountain Affair is coming up on 10/13 and these unrestricted revenues, along with other event revenue, result in a noticeable increase in our bottom line on our Revenue & Expense report.

c) Cash Flow and Line of Credit - Reviewed

d) Investments and Endowments – Reviewed
Our Burroughs investments reflect $19K worth of stock sold for our 2017 County commitment.

e) MCR Property Financing-Update
Our escrow agreement stipulates that we either refinance or pay $35K to escrow by 12/17/17. We are currently working on securing financing with County Bank. Bank of America was unable to offer us a commercial loan. We are looking to finance $520 K. Doug noted that the property values are likely to increase in the Valley.

f) La Manzana Property-Update
Roofing is slated to begin 10/9.

12:08  Agenda Review
12:08  CEO Report – Ray Cancino
1.  Retreat - Follow up discussion
   CEO noted that Eugenia will provide a next steps and visioning document after reviewing retreat notes, and asked Committee for their feedback and perspective before talking to her. CAO shared feedback from MT that the values exercise was confusing and unclear, and that more could have been achieved with the available time. Committee noted that the coming together and getting to know each other created a sense of comradery. Don Lane's presentation was very well received. Committee asked whether Eugenia would be coming back to a BOD meeting and present on how Don’s presentation connects to the values/vision exercise, and on the results of the exercise.
2.  Facilities
   a.  La Manzana Property - Water Leaks
   We have had a water leak in the WIC Watsonville site that turned into a bigger project that has displaced five employees from their work areas.
   b.  Highlands Park - Break in
   This is the second break in this year. The facility has also experienced a transient individual with mental health issues that has been on the property throwing rocks. It is unknown whether the incidents are related.

01:38  Agency Advocacy Model – Raymon Cancino
Ray noted that everything we do in our day-to-day work is related to politics. By being part of the discussion and building political capital we are affecting decisions that will be made with or without our input. Creating an active grassroots base helps in building relationships and affords us a barrier between the agency leadership and decisions that impact our work negatively. By diversifying the message we can ensure that everyone are involved using methods such as phone calls, personnel meetings, public meetings, community spaces (i.e. social and traditional media). Advocacy is not linear but rather subject to the environment. CEO used Measure D as an example of a successful advocacy campaign that combined the advocacy modes of Defender, Analyzer, and Prospector in order to win a major revenue source affecting many CB clients. CEO noted that although the campaign was successful, it did not come without hardship such as letters and phone calls against CEO.

02:00  Values Exercise – Eugenia
Eugenia asked retreat attendees to choose and rank the three values that best represent the overarching themes of:
1. Excellence
2. Community
3. Integrity
4. Initiative
5. Commitment
Eugenia noted that advocacy relates to our sphere of influence, but does not exist in a vacuum. The line between each sphere is where we balance barriers and supportive forces. Today’s exercise is about mapping values and linking the Spheres of Advocacy to the program level using the topics:
1. Clients
2. Food
3. Community Centers
4. Access
5. Advocacy.

Eugenia asked that everyone stay with lens of the client for this exercise, and divided retreat participants into five diverse table groups consisting of PDs, Admin staff, and BOD members.

2:30 Local Advocacy Expertise - Don Lane
Don noted that diversity of tactics is important, as is picking the appropriate tactic for each issue at hand. There was some discussion about how to bring the conversation back to a community space so that a community can speak for themselves without making it seem to come only from CB. Don spoke about the importance of asking stakeholders directly what we can do to convince them and/or help them change their position. Building relationships outside of actions is a precursor to this, and inviting them to events is one example of relationship building. Don noted the importance of identifying and strategizing with our strongest allies, which removes CB from the center of taking funding away from other programs or agencies. Don noted that programs have to play within the framework stakeholders present, even when funds go towards trending issues versus actual data-driven causes. Exposing flawed logic models is important by showing how it will affect clients on the ground level.

3:15 Themes and Messaging: Setting the Stage - Eugenia
Eugenia asked retreat participants to meet in their groups and discuss how their keyword is linked to each of the top three values by creating an illustrative story that hold the clients in focus.

Group 1:
EXCELLENCE
- Quality (23)
- Impact (18)
- Effective (17)

B. Accomplishments:
- Having just hired a new program assistant, we are fully staffed at this time.
- Elderday continues to enhance our daily activities. Our participants art works, made during art therapy, have been mounted and are displayed in a First Friday exhibit at Mandala Salon in Santa Cruz for the month of October.
- New volunteer coordinator has more than doubled volunteer hours from 2014/15 (848 hours) to 2016/17 (2,170 hrs)
- Work with TurboTar to move more toward electronic record-keeping is complete and a number of processes have been streamlined and are being produced electronically.

C. Challenges:
- We continue to carefully monitor healthcare legislation at the federal level as significant cuts to the ACA could be devastating to CCAH and Elderday.
- Maintaining daily attendance continues to be a challenge, as does retaining staff due to low pay rates.
- Initiating two new programs (one for fall reduction and one for depression reduction) to meet county CORE requirements, with the same funding and same staffing, is challenging.
Nearly 70 percent experience "rent burden" in Santa Cruz County, according to UC Santa Cruz survey results

University researchers partnered with community organizations to survey 1,700 renters across county; overcrowding and maintenance are issues, too

October 09, 2017
By Jennifer McNulty

Nearly 70 percent of renters surveyed in Santa Cruz County experience "rent burden," defined as spending more than 30 percent of their income on rent and utilities, according to preliminary results of a survey of 1,700 renters across the county conducted by UC Santa Cruz.

The survey also found that one in four renters devote a shocking 70 percent of their income to rent and utilities.

"This means only one-third of the people we talked to could be considered to be getting by," said Steve McKay, associate professor of sociology at UC Santa Cruz, who co-led the project with Sociology Professor Miriam Greenberg. "Housing is the number-one issue in Santa Cruz County, and we have to find ways to relieve the burden renters are experiencing."

Renters also face significant challenges with overcrowding, evictions and forced moves, and major maintenance, the survey revealed. Additional findings include:

• 27 percent of respondents experience overcrowding, with more than two people occupying a bedroom—a finding much higher than official statistics, McKay noted.

• Of renters who moved in the last five years, 50 percent said the move was "forced or involuntary," most often due to eviction or a rent increase.

• 57 percent said they had experienced at least one major problem with their rental, with maintenance and overall condition of the unit the most commonly cited problems.

McKay, Greenberg and their team will present their results during a free public event on Thursday, October 19, at the Santa Cruz Civic Auditorium. The event, which kicks off Affordable Housing Week, begins at 7 p.m.; Spanish translation will be provided. Co-sponsored by the City of Santa Cruz, the event also features a visual and literary art exhibit on the meaning of "home."

The study, "No Place Like Home: The Santa Cruz County Affordable Housing Crisis Report," was produced in collaboration with the Community Action Board of Santa Cruz County and Community Bridges, with financial support from the UC Humanities Research Institute, the UC Santa Cruz Institute for Humanities Research, the UCSC Division of Student Success, and the UC Office of the President, and others.

The findings build on results of an earlier survey McKay and Greenberg conducted of nearly 500 residents of the Beach Flats and Lower Ocean neighborhoods in Santa Cruz that documented similar levels of financial hardship.

In the latest installment, students reached out to renters in four additional neighborhoods—Live Oak, Watsonville, the Westside, and Downtown Santa Cruz—to talk with them about their experiences. Respondents were asked about rent, overcrowding, evictions and forced moves, and problems with maintenance, among other issues.

"By talking with 1,700 people, we are able to tell an important story that captures the experience of renters across our county," said McKay. "The story is sadly consistent, and these results underscore the need to address the housing crisis in our community."

The research is the product of a new model of "community-initiated student engaged research" being pioneered by McKay and Greenberg, who have worked with more than 200 UC Santa Cruz undergraduates since February 2016, many of whom are native Spanish speakers. This spring, McKay taught a new class in research methodologies, and students then administered surveys, traversing the county in bilingual pairs, knocking on doors and asking residents to spend 20-30 minutes responding to survey questions.

Respondents were offered $10 Safeway gift cards as an incentive, and all were offered a pamphlet explaining their rights as renters, whether they participated in the survey or not. Responses were collected on computer tablets, which allowed for rapid data analysis, said McKay. In addition, about 75 respondents participated in in-depth, follow-up interviews, some of which were edited into "digital stories" that will be debuted at the event.

"The students loved it," said McKay. "They came alive out in the field." For native Spanish speakers, many of who have been told they are deficient because they aren’t native English speakers, the experience was particularly empowering, he said.

"Latinos, particularly non-English speakers, are perpetually undercounted and underrepresented in survey research, but we were able to reach them because our students could speak to them," said McKay. "These students became the most important asset in the research. They were bringing skills I don’t have, and they are creating better research because of it."

McKay’s students were also able to connect with vulnerable populations, including undocumented immigrants, who might otherwise be wary of survey research. "Many of our students are vulnerable themselves, so they could make a connection with the people they were interviewing," he said.

Community partners contributed to the success of the survey effort, said McKay.

"Respondents were more likely to open up, because we were working with community organizations they trust," he noted. Students attended events and got to know the clientele and staff of the Community Bridges’ Resource Centers and the Community Action Board’s Day Worker Center. They distributed flyers about the survey, and community leaders encouraged residents to participate.

Financial support from the UC Office of the President funded spring and summer research internships for participating students, who were paid $15 per hour, working 20 hours per week; that support enabled low-income students to participate in the research opportunity, noted McKay.

"We’re trying to build this model of community-initiated, student-engaged research," said McKay. "This is one of the most fulfilling things I’ve done as an academic. It’s what research at a public university should look like."

McKay and Greenberg worked with undergraduate teams of about 10 students, each of which focused on a particular area: field surveys and interviews; data analysis; expert interviews; background and policy research; digital mapping; digital storytelling; web design; art and literary production; events; and outreach.

"It’s been an amazing opportunity to be part of this project," said Hermes Padilla, a senior Community Studies major who administered surveys, conducted in-depth follow-up interviews, and is now helping with data analysis. "It definitely changed my whole educational and career goals."

https://news.ucsc.edu/2017/10/mckay-housing.html
Talking with renters was eye opening, said Padilla, who learned of hardship that is "way harsher" than what renters experience in his hometown of Los Angeles. He was also struck by the gratitude of Watsonville residents, who appreciated his willingness to come to South County to speak to them in Spanish about their experiences.

"They thanked me for asking them about their experiences, and they thanked me for getting educated, like it was empowering for the community as a whole," said Padilla, who plans to build on the experience by doing a six-month field study of displaced homeless people in Latin America.

"No Place Like Home" is a sweeping, ongoing, interdisciplinary project. In Greenberg’s classes, students researched the historic roots and impacts of affordable housing crises. Literature students wrote creative nonfiction inspired by renter experiences. A conceptual art class focused on the meaning of home.

Collaborators include the Center for Integrated Spatial Research, the Center for Statistical Analysis in the Social Sciences, and the Everett Program. The project also received funding and support from the Center for Labor Studies, the Critical Sustainabilities Project, departments of Sociology and Literature, Division of Social Sciences; the Chicano Latino Research Center; the Economic Justice Alliance, and the UCSC Sustainability Office.

Letter: AB 1250 is special interest deal-making

The California Legislature convenes Monday to close out this legislative year to consider hundreds of bills, some good, some bad.

A really bad one for the general public and county government(s) is Assembly Bill 1250 which will cost us millions of dollars every year by limiting us from contracting with community-based, nonprofit organizations and local businesses for quality services they provide to you and your neighbors.

A couple of examples in Santa Cruz County. Our Sheriff’s Office contracts with the highly respected Janus of Santa Cruz to oversee operations of our recovery center. If it is required that such services have to be carried out only by public employees, it will cost Santa Cruz County hundreds of thousands — if not millions — of additional dollars.

Or, Community Bridges (CB) — one of our largest nonprofits that employs nearly 200 staff in our tri-county region — provides quality services to 23,000 clients, from children to senior citizens, every year. If AB 1250 passes, CB — and many others — will be severely limited from supplying services. Passage of AB 1250 will result in fewer needy people getting those contracted services they deserve — and it will cost us much more.

Furthermore, AB 1250 is unfair. Cities, another level of local government, have become exempt, as are the counties of San Francisco and Santa Clara counties.

It’s special interest deal-making at its worst. AB 1250 passage will cost county government(s) more and fewer people will get the services they need.

— Bruce McPherson, County Supervisor, 5th District
On my mind, Aug. 26: Three big losses

Updated: 2 days ago

By TARMO HANNULA

It is with great sadness that I write about the passing of three important friends, who I believe played a huge role in shaping the fabric of Watsonville: Jim Rector, master home builder, Peggy Avalos, site manager at the Watsonville Senior Center through Community Bridges, and Lorraine Stucki, community activist and former Couch Distributing worker.

I’m staggered that these three folks, people that helped me tremendously with my job in keeping me dialed in to local goings on, have all bid farewell in just the past few weeks.

Jim was one of the best-spoken people I’ve met, a true wordsmith, in my mind. He could articulate an experience, an event, even some little thing that happened to him in such a way that could pull you in and give you the deep flavor of what he had seen and felt. Few people, to me, can do that.
Jim was easy to approach, welcoming and a darned good listener. I often ran into him at various construction sites, hammer or paint brush in hand, a broad smile on his face and always, an extended warm handshake: That was Jim.

For the newspaper I covered Jim many times over the years, including the moving of the Rodgers House from East Lake Avenue out to the fairgrounds. Despite the massive scale of that job, he constantly maintained his upbeat posture and laughed his way through the various trials and tribulations. He also had the great ability of being able to stand back and laugh at his mistakes and move on, regardless.

My wife Sarah and I attended a play once in San Juan Bautista with Jim and his long-time wife Marian. We had a marvelous evening together. What a huge loss. Jim was a friend and a good man. The world needs more people like him.

Peggy always kept me in the loop with goings on at the Watsonville Senior Center where she served for 25 years. I know she did that because she cared; it was a genuine interest to help keep the senior community in good shape. Peggy routinely called me to include the R-P in various events like the Halloween dance, Cinco de Mayo and on and on. It was plainly obvious that she was well-liked over at the center and highly respected.

Never one to barge in and hog the center stage, Peggy quietly took a back burner seat and just let me do my job and was always deeply thankful for our coverage of Senior Center events.

Lorraine was one of the kindest people ever. I’ve been to her home many times and her kind little hound, Nikki, was always the first to greet my reporter and I. Lorraine was the real deal; no smoke and mirrors; just a straight up person with bold ideas. I liked her. She had a vision and moved forward with it. I know this community is a better place because of her and because of Jim and Peggy. Thank you for what you gave to Watsonville and you will not be forgotten.

For pregnant women in Santa Cruz County, hospital ratings just a Yelp away

By Jondi Gumz, Santa Cruz Sentinel

WATSONVILLE >> Lizzett Sanchez, 24, who is expecting her first baby, a girl, on Jan. 1, is among the pregnant women in California turning to Yelp for information on hospital maternity care.

She’s been commuting from Salinas to work at Community Bridges’ Women, Infants & Children program in Watsonville as an education specialist and getting prenatal care at Palo Alto Medical Foundation in Santa Cruz.

When she heard Yelp had posted information on caesarean sections and breastfeeding rates at hospitals, she took a look.

“It’s very nice to see,” said Sanchez, who has a degree as a nutritionist. “I really like the fact that they had breastfeeding rates.”

She said she had heard about complications with C-sections, the surgical delivery of a baby that can result in infection, respiratory issues, stays in the neonatal intensive care unit and reduced breastfeeding.

“I definitely want the more natural side,” she said.

She wished Yelp would include feedback on hospitals from first-time and second-time moms.

Not all hospitals in California are alike when it comes to C-sections and breastfeeding. Ten years ago, the California Health Care Foundation began collecting data on quality of hospital care to help consumers facing medical decisions make more informed choices. Since 2014, this information has been posted at CalHospitalCompare.org, a site health experts know about but not that familiar to consumers.

RATES VARY

In July, the California Health Care Foundation partnered with Yelp to add information about C-sections, breastfeeding and vaginal births after C-sections for each California hospital providing maternity care.

Most hospitals have a page on Yelp, and the information appears in a box headlined “Maternity Care Data” on the right-hand side of the page.

As Dr. Sandra Hernández, the foundation’s president and CEO, put it, the idea was to provide information to people “where they already are.”

The foundation has been working with other statewide partners to lower the rate of unnecessary low-risk C-sections to the national goal of 23.9 percent by 2020.

California’s rate is 25.4 percent, up from 21 percent in 1997.

Once a mother has had a C-section, subsequent births tend to be by C-section, which is more costly, nearly 50 percent higher than for a vaginal birth, according to the foundation.

Sutter Maternity and Surgery Center in Santa Cruz has the lowest C-section rate in Santa Cruz County, 15.2 percent. At Dominican Hospital, it is 21.3 percent, and at Watsonville Community Hospital, 30.3 percent.

Breastmilk contains cells, hormones and antibodies that help protect babies from illness.

The American Association of Pediatrics in 2012 reaffirmed its recommendation that babies should get only breast milk for the first six months but those intentions can be undermined by high C-section rates. After surgery, there can be a delay in the milk coming and the mother may not have the strength to get up on her own or lift the baby to feed.

Cathy Cavanaugh, director of Community Bridges’ Women, Infants & Children program, is enthusiastic about the new approach.

“Most of our clients use smartphones and social media,” she said, noting WIC uses text messaging to schedule appointments and breastfeeding peer counseling. “Parents want to make informed choices and they are looking for this information before, during and after pregnancy.”

INSURANCE FACTOR

Two moms who run Nursing Mothers Counsel in Santa Cruz shared their perspectives.

“I’m not sure it will have much of an impact locally,” said Becca Scheiblauer, one of the leaders, noting the two hospitals in Santa Cruz are similar in terms of their rates.

“I think it’s a great idea,” said her co-leader, Katie Williams, who researched C-section rates on her own before her first baby.

She felt lucky to have a hospital with a 15 percent C-section rate but she said many women have less of a choice because it depends on which hospitals their insurance covers.

Sanchez, who expects to leave her job in Santa Cruz and move to San Jose, said she is not sure if she will continue with the insurance she has now.

So her hospital choice is up in the air.

“I need to find something where I will be comfortable, with high rates of breastfeeding,” she said.
