- 5:15 5. Receive comments from members of the public on "Items not on the Agenda" None.

5:20 6. Development/Philanthropy Report & Committee Update - Ray Cancino

We are 25% from reaching our total agency year-end philanthropy goal. Some of this is due to larger agency gifts, and does not reflect actual program level philanthropy goals. The family mailer has just gone out, and Lautman is going out again at the end of April. Shannon participated on the Development Director interview-panels this week, and two candidates were passed on to the second round.

5:25 7. Agency Business - Ray Cancino

7.1 Advocacy Overview - 2017

Staff distributed a packet of bills on assembly and federal level that impact CB programs and services. Levels of advocacy depends on own capacity for each individual bill, and can sometimes require us to sign letters of support, while at other times CB will draft the actual letter. We have had meetings with John Leopold, chief of polices, and the sheriff, as they are experts on immigration issues and wanted to discuss the immigration raids and its effects on the community. We are also reaching out to the new members of Santa Cruz City Council. There was a good turnout at the first immigrant preparedness forum at Nueva Vista on 3/8. The second one is next week at the Live Oak Senior Center. We invited elected officials to speak at both events. Staff noted there are two additional bills with positive impacts for the CDD; AB 60, for which First 5 just signed a letter of support, will affect eligibility for childcare; AB 300 will allow the counties of Monterey, San Benito, and Santa Cruz to create childcare subsidy plans that address the needs of both families and childcare providers.

5:35 8. Finance Committee Update - Cathy Benson

There was very little net change from last month, but there were some large swings within programs. CEO received notice of $6500 in underpaid utilities, and the monthly triple net expenses were increased by $1000 moving forward for Elderday. Admin is seeing higher costs than anticipated related to the capital purchase expenses, and less direct revenue due to almost all programs ending with a surplus. Lift Line's cost for workers compensation saw a $20K drop. Sunlight giving funds are being held as reserve to be used as down payment if the capital purchase goes through. Assets exceeds liabilities by 3.5, and liquidity is 8/10 of a month. MCR is making a good-faith move to refinance, and we are reaching out to SLVUSD to investigate preferred vendors. RM is getting closer to opening, and there is a waitlist. We are having a difficulty hiring, and CDD has six open positions.

11:08 Agenda Review

11:08 CFO Report - Cathy Benson

- a) Program Budget Summary Review February
  Cathy noted that there were a few swings during the last month. Notably MOW received a 29K AAA one-time only fund. SNAP Ed funds pumped up Nueva Vista with $15K. Projected Programs' Gain for 16/17 is $229,806 and this overall budget improvement is due to vacancies not being filled as projected in the budgets. We have had difficulty hiring across the agency from PDs, to CDD teachers, and LL drivers. CEO and CFO clarified some questions from committee, citing pay-rates compared to housing prices, and educational requirements as barriers for hire. ELD is making headway on reducing the deficit and is projecting a surplus, but anticipated step- increases among staff will neutralize it. Lift Line needs two full time drivers and will need three more with the expansion. Cathy clarified that Admin revenue is tied to programs spending such that when program spending is down, Admin revenue and surplus goes down.
- Financial Statement Review February
   Cathy noted that the agency's liability ratios are looking great, and except for liquidity, we are above all goals.
- c) Cash Flow and Line of Credit Updates Cash flow is stable through June 30th.
- d) Investments and Endowment Updates

- Cathy will ask Cole if monthly automatic deposits into our restricted endowment are possible.
- e) New fiscal software agreements-Concur and Financial Edge NXT Cathy noted that Concur and Financial Edge NXT have been chosen as the new Fiscal department software. Financial Edge NXT is Fundware's successor, so there will be less work transitioning. The Fiscal Department is also ready to roll out Concur, which is the new credit card expense tracking system. In addition CB has transitioned to a new ADP platform that has an HR component.

11:55 Items for Next Agenda

Jack noted that WLC has a column for potential funding and chances for getting it in their budget. Ray noted that we will know about CORE allocations on 5/16 and PDs are currently projecting out different scenarios.

Governance Committee

Thursday, April 13th, 2017 11:30AM – 12:30PM Community Bridges (CB), Aptos

DRAFT MINUTES

Members Present: Rebecca Fowler, Shannon Brady, Jordan Ciliberto.

Staff Present: Ray Cancino, Seth McGibben Julie Gilbertson.

Notes: Tonje Switzer

11:30 Committee Chair called the meeting to order. Quorum established.

11:31 Agenda Review

11:32 CEO Report - Ray Cancino

- 1. Advocacy Update
  - a. John Leopold

Leopold expressed interest in moving forward with a joint asset arrangement with MOW and Senior Network Services at the Live Oak Senior Center building. As soon as the meeting concerning the lease with LOSD has taken place, this conversation will be revisited.

- b. Martine Watkins
  - CEO met with Martine Watkins, and another meeting will be scheduled after CORE allocations are known.
- Strategic Planning Retreat
- 3. Board Committee -

From MT, Cathy Cavanaugh and Lisa Berkowitz have volunteered to serve on the committee. There will be two meetings of 2.5 hour duration. Shannon can attend depending on time of meetings.

- 4. Agency Stakeholder Survey Analysis
  - The survey shows an overall positive increase in engagement from 2015-2016. It was distributed shortly after the November 2016 action, which may explain the change in answers to question #6 and the input that was provided.
- CDD Annual Contract Renewal

There was a request from the state to lower the contract amount, which CB contested. The original numbers were consequently approved.

6. CCAH - *Official Decision not to pursue - Action Item*

CEO noted that after communicating with Elderday's current property owners, it is clear that there is no room for expansion at the current site, and we cannot afford an expansion at La Manzana. Therefore, we have exhausted the available options that would have met the original proposals' intent and found no suitable solution at this time. Jordan/ Rebecca moved not to pursue the CCAH grant.MSP

7. LL - TDA Claim - Action Item*

The claim is based on projections for FY 2017/18, and it needs to be processed through the City of Santa Cruz. A few staff calculating errors in the printed version presented at GC has since been corrected. Shannon/Rebecca Moved to allow CEO to submit the LL TDA claim to the city of Santa Cruz, with the corrections discussed. MSP

- 8. WIC CDPH's biennial Program Monitoring Visit
  - a. Audit Correctives
     A few minor audit correctives have been taken care of.
- 9. Facilities
  - a. LOCR was closed to clients for a week after a drunk driver hit the property and damaged the main waterline and fire sprinkler system. CB worked with the county and our insurer to get the building up to working condition again.
  - MOW Live Oak Unified School District Update
     A meeting has been scheduled with the LOSD superintendent, Tamra Taylor, for a discussion of the lease.
  - c. La Manzana Rehabilitation Plan
    - CEO commended Seth on his work on the PSA and for coordinating with the legal expert. We are set to move forward with the original closing date, May 10. Some amendments were made to the agreement. The interest rates went up from 4.75%-5.5%. CEO will reach out to tenants and reassure them that we want them to stay. Staff is working on getting a demolition permit to remove trellis and stage as soon as possible, as it is deteriorating after the heavy rains.
  - Mountain Community Resources: San Lorenzo Valley Unified School District Update
    - CB's role is to investigate a potential loan with three financial institutions towards the purchase of the building before a balloon payment of $25K is due on December 31. No potential loan can go above $3500 per month.
- 10. Agency Staffing Shortages.

The potential DD that was interviewed chose a different agency. In addition, we have lost a PD and two other positions with CACFP, and we are struggling to find qualified candidates. The agency is being creative in terms of specific projects such as Agency BBQ and F2F, potentially outsourcing specific tasks such as an event coordinator for the latter. CB asked for $10K extra for the Development Director salary from Community Foundation to make the position more attractive for potential candidates. We are interviewing for the CACFP PD position on Friday 4/14.

CEO sent around a list of major donors and asked GC to identify potential connections that they can meet with to solicit Capital Purchase funds for the new building.

C. Accomplishments:

December -With the help of over 25 community members MOW delivered 150 meals on Christmas Day to home delivered meal participants.

February-was a very busy fundraising month for MOW with the tenth annual Bay Federal Coin Drive kicked off and the fourth annual Food from the Heart Event.

March -Over 20 elected officials and first responders participated in Community Champion's week, a national effort to highlight the critical issues of food insecurity and social isolation MOW' programs are addressing.

MOW is delighted to welcome to our staff Alma Molina as the new Assistant Director for the program.

C.Accomplishments:

C. Accomplishments: 1. The House and Senate passed a continuing resolution (CR) to maintain FY 2017WIC funding to April 28, 2017. If the budget is not passed, another CR is expected with adequate funding for WIC participation. WIC staff attended the state conference in San Diego and brought back new ideas and inspiration for innovative client services. Caseload has remained stable despite many fears in the community about immigration, and we have had few requests to leave the program. We are reassuring WIC clients that WIC data is not shared outside of the WIC program, and not even with the USDA.

The agriculture season is upon us and WIC will start extending hours to 7pm on Tuesdays. We are hopeful that clients continue to access services.

POSTED ON MARCH 21, 2017

[This is the third story in a series examining immigration issues in Santa Cruz County. Read Part 1 here and Part 2 here.]

Sitting in a corner of the children's section of the downtown public library, Camila* is holding a tan notebook. In it, she's written a quote from Thomas Jefferson: "When injustice becomes law, resistance becomes duty."

As an activist, Camila fought for plastic-free oceans, joining a statewide push for legislation to ban plastic bags and straws. She joined in the fight to preserve the Beach Flats Community Garden and got to know the Santa Cruz City Council very well with her regular appearances at meetings. But under the first few months of the new presidential administration, she has cautiously slid out of the limelight.

The parent of two young girls, Camila volunteers regularly at their school, teaching Spanish and art. They are her top priority.

"I have fears," says Camila, an undocumented immigrant. "If it's just me, I don't care, but I don't want to be separated from my kids. If I make a mistake or say things loudly as an activist, if I make someone in power uncomfortable, they can send ICE [Immigration and Customs Enforcement] agents to my house."

Like many in her situation, Camila pays taxes using an Employee Identification Number. Her driver's license identifies her undocumented status with the words "Federal Limits" in the upper right corner. "Out there, many people are saying, 'You break the law and you know it. There are consequences,'" she says. "But I believe that no human is illegal. In certain moments of your life you made decisions, and I am here. My kids are born here. They are American citizens, and they have rights."

Attorney Tanya Ridino works with Monarch Services, a domestic violence outreach program that primarily serves the Latino community. After the election, Monarch began to receive a much higher volume of calls from parents asking for help with planning for their children's welfare in the event that they are deported. She began training her bilingual staff to help families plan for the possibility of deportation. Along with a heightened increase in calls, she has noticed a drop off in showing up for appointments. "People are terrified to come in and seek legal help that they need," she says.

Ridino isn't the only one who's sensed an increase in fear and uncertainty within the immigrant community. Immediately after the election, Michele Bigley, a writing instructor for UCSC and Cal State University of Monterey Bay, wondered how she could help those who might become more vulnerable under President Donald Trump's new administration. Her husband, Eddie Broitman, an estate planning attorney, told her he also wanted to do something to help. She heard the same thing from her friends—parents, educators, and health professionals. Bigley and company teamed up with Sanctuary Central, a group of estate planning attorneys, and began to look at existing legal documents. "It's all new to everyone. We are trying to latch on to the knowledge of people who worked in these fields for a long time," Bigley says.

SAFE HAVEN

The Self Help Center (SHC) at the courthouse in Watsonville is the only free place people can go for help with understanding legal issues and rights. Director of Operations Sasha Morgan says that they have gotten a lot of phone calls about notaries who were charging big bucks for legal advice that the SHC provides for free. SHC attorneys hosted a meeting at the Santa Cruz courthouse on March 14 to identify steps parents might follow to prepare for a deportation. They are also putting together a packet with local resources and a checklist of documents, modeled after a similar effort from the Immigrant Legal Resource Center (ILRC), as well as the "Know Your Rights" Red Card that groups like Community Bridges are distributing.

Three other documents are circulating now, and the SHC may also include them in its packet. A caregiver affidavit, for instance, allows a parent to choose an individual to be responsible for their children in the event that they are no longer able to care for them. The responsible individual signs the affidavit if and when it becomes necessary.

Most parents have expressed the desire to have their children brought to them if they are deported. Doing so requires a specific power of attorney identifying the terms of travel, including names and locations, and dual citizenship for the child is helpful.

Some community members have suggested circulating a nomination of guardianship form. Advocates like Ridino are concerned, though, that the document could be misused, because it completely removes parental rights and could make it very difficult to restore them. Ridino says she has had years of experience trying to help people undo disputed guardianship.

Morgan says all parents, regardless of immigration status, should update emergency contacts on record at their child's school and specify in writing who they want to take care of their children in their absence. A representative from the Santa Cruz City School District says officials have also offered to scan important paperwork, since many documents were destroyed during the recent raids.

POINT OF ORDER

Camila is wary of getting help because she feels it isn't safe. She took her children into court to get their passports, even though she felt very nervous doing so. Doug Keegan, program director of the Santa Cruz Immigration Department, says it's important to make sure the courts remain safe places locally, because there have been incidents of ICE agents showing up at courthouses to make arrests, as they did recently in Pasadena.

Although Camila has identified someone to be a guardian, the thought of that becoming a reality is too much for her to consider. Her family is in Mexico, but her only friends are here. She trusts those friends, but she says that—when it comes to her kids—no amount of trust could make the idea of a splintered family tolerable. It would be very difficult on her young kids, who don't fully understand the situation when she and her husband talk to them about it.

A recent Community Bridges meeting for concerned immigrants shared information, including tips on self-care from a therapist. Nervous parents swarmed volunteers with questions. "I just want to give people some peace of mind," says Rocio Llontop, one of the event's coordinators and a volunteer notary.

Community Bridges devotes itself to serving the needs of all immigrants, regardless of legal status. CEO Raymon Cancino says providing helpful information is important, since the Trump administration has not been particularly clear on who will or will not be impacted by president's campaign promises.

Bigley says some of her students came here as young as two years of age, but they're undocumented. "They are just as American as we are, but they don't have that paper. They are out there doing the real work—helping others in need, the mentally ill, kids with cancer," she says. "They are doing the work in the most meaningful heartfelt areas, and to think we are sending the message that we don't want them, it shames me for my country."

Officials support Meals on Wheels as program faces cuts

Posted: Wednesday, Mar 22nd, 2017 BY: TODD GUILD

LIVE OAK - A team of volunteers packed their vehicles full of hot food at the Live Oak Senior Center Wednesday morning, preparing to bring it to hungry mid-county seniors.

For the Meals on Wheels volunteers, the trip was nothing new. Some come on a daily basis, while others do it once a week. For the seniors, the meals - and the contact with the volunteers - can be the only daily social contact they have.

The deliveries came in the middle of the annual Community Champions Week, part of a nationwide campaign that aims to increase awareness and encourage support for senior nutrition needs and services.

Elected officials help with meal deliveries as part of the week, which the organization says is a way to experience firsthand the impact such services have.

Santa Cruz County Sheriff Jim Hart joined his parents Larry and Susan Hart, who volunteer weekly for Meals on Wheels for Santa Cruz County.

Several Watsonville City Council members are slated to make deliveries on Friday.

Sue Hart said the deliveries are a chance to meet new people, and to check in on a population of people who too often live alone.

"I think they need the social outlet," she said.

Hart said they normally make about seven stops on their weekly route.

"It makes us feel really good," she said. "Once we started, it became really enjoyable."

Run by Community Bridges, Meals on Wheels for Santa Cruz County has served nearly 9 million meals to 60,000 local seniors since its inception in 1976.

Some 200 volunteers work to serve around 150,000 meals per year.

Social services programs such as Meals on Wheels have been in the news since late February, when President Donald Trump introduced his budget for the 2018 fiscal year, titled, "America First: A Budget Blueprint to Make America Great Again."

Among other things, Trump has proposed $69 billion for the Health and Human Services Department, through which Meals on Wheels is funded. That is a $15 billion reduction from 2017.

In the 53-page budget summary, Trump said that the Federal Government has spent more than $150 billion on the program since its inception in 1974, but that it is "not well-targeted to the poorest populations" and has no demonstrated results.

Community Bridges Chief Executive Officer Raymon Cancino said the numbers are worrisome.

"This is a true safety net," he said of the program. "We're trying to ensure that our community feels supported."

Cancino was quick to say that the budget is merely a proposal. It must still pass muster with U.S. lawmakers, many of whom have expressed doubt about it.

The high numbers, Cancino said, are likely Trump's business philosophy of playing "hardball" during negotiations and will likely be far lower once approved by U.S. lawmakers.

Still, Cancino estimated the cut to the program will likely be around 10 percent, which he said is still a concern.

"It depends on the powers that be, and what they are going to be willing to fight for," he said.

Cancino pointed out that rising cost of living, and a growing population of seniors, make such services more important than ever.

"This is the most backward time to be cutting Meals on Wheels," he said. "We have a great tsunami coming, and they are cutting the very programs that help these people."

The budget shifts programs such as community and economic development to the state and local level, and redirects the federal resources.

The President has also proposed eliminating entirely the Community Development Block Grant program, which he touts as saving $3 billion.

If that portion of the budget passes, Cancino said it would mean a $100,000 loss for the after-school program in the Beach Flats neighborhood in Santa Cruz.

Also on the chopping block are programs such as youth centers in Santa Cruz and Watsonville, the Homeless Services Center, Seniors Council and the Area Agency on Aging.

Donations to Meals on Wheels programs have risen slightly since Trump introduced his budget, part of an upwelling of support Cancino said is important to keep going.

Cancino said the county intends to keep the programs running, regardless of the outcome of the budget.

"It really depends on community involvement," he said. "We need to show on a national level what a true act of compassion looks like."
